To whomever it may concern.

In my opinion, the legal action against Microsoft should never have gone to court, but since it has, it should be settled quickly with no further litigation's. I believe that court actions against the corp. of Microsoft is not in the best interest of the public.

In contrast to what the competition would like the public to believe, I believe that Microsoft has done more than any similar business unit in making computer systems available, useful and affordable.

Thanks
